Biases in the data emerge when considering the wide variety of people who live in NYC and the fluctuating rates of crimes in the city as well. We do not want to make assumptions such as “Men who live in brooklyn are incredibly likely to get shot” this is just an assertion of trends historically in New york. This is a compelling data because it shows the orgins of policies such as “Stop-and-Frisk” policies which were created partly on the basis of poorly bias indentification in data visualization and modeling.
